Whales free after 3 weeks

BARROW, Alaska (AP)—Superpower saviors opened a path to the sea and freed two trapped whales Wednesday as Soviet ice-breakers bashed through an ice ridge and Americans hacked iceholes to the Russians.

Progress in the work to free the migrating whales surged on Tuesday when two Soviet vessels began smashing the arctic ice that confined the pair. A third whale, also trapped, is believed to have died last week.

The international rescue, called Operation Breakthrough, was scheduled to be put in motion Wednesday with the Soviet vessels and Eskimos smashing apart the ice with chain-saws.

The Admiral Makorov and the ice-breaking cargo ship Vladimir Arseniev sailed into Port Barrow Wednesday and cleared a path to open sea for the Californian gray whales.

The whales were stranded about 100 yards offshore nearly three weeks ago by shifting ice about 13 miles northeast of Barrow. A third whale disappeared Friday and is presumed dead.

Biologists reported a setback in earlier rescue efforts Monday when the whales balked near a shoal and retreated a half-mile toward shore. Rescue workers had cut a series of rescue holes in the ice that led to open water, but the whales were apparently spooked by the shallow water, which is 17 to 25 feet deep.

Annex groundbreaking set

Governor's appearance not definite

By CRAIG EDWARDS
Administration editor

Although Gov. James R. Thompson has been invited to attend a groundbreaking ceremony Monday for the four-level addition to Coleman Hall, officials from his Springfield office have not yet confirmed his appearance.

The ceremony, however, will definitely take place at 10 a.m. Monday outside Coleman Hall whether the governor makes it or not, said Mia Jazzo, public relations director for the Illinois Capital Development Board.

Thompson released $6.23 million to the Capital Development Board earlier this month for construction of the addition to Coleman Hall. When completed in 1990, the addition will house Eastern's Lumpkin College of Business.

Ted Ivarie, dean of the college of business, said the new facility will improve the quality of classroom instruction and will provide a necessary element towards accreditation by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business.

Ivarie also said the new building will help to consolidate the college of business, which currently has an enrollment of more than 2,500 students. Classes are currently held in six different buildings on campus, with faculty offices divided between Blair and Coleman Halls.

Ivarie will be just one of the speakers to participate in the Monday morning groundbreaking ceremony. Daniel Thornburgh, director of university relations, said Wednesday other speakers scheduled to present brief remarks during the ceremony include Eastern President Stan Rives, Board of Governors Chair Nancy Froelich, State Rep. Mike Weaver and Sen. Harry "Babe" Woodyard.

Thornburgh said Gary Scoein, executive director of the Illinois Capital Development Board, will serve as master of ceremonies for the groundbreaking.

Following the actual groundbreaking which will take place on the east side of Coleman Hall on the South Quad, Thornburgh said there will be a reception in Klehm Hall, formerly the Applied Sciences Building.

Jazzo said construction of the addition will begin in November, with the estimated completion date set for July 1990. The fourlevel addition will include one level below ground, one at ground level and two above ground levels. The addition will house two auditoriums, a staff-faculty lounge, seven case study rooms, four microcomputer laboratories, four departmental offices, conference rooms, an office for the dean and about 70 faculty offices.

Political prisoners to be released from USSR

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union will release all people regarded in the West as political prisoners by the end of the year. Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany said Wednesday after talks with President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Such a dramatic move would be one of the boldest signs yet from Gorbachev in that he seeks a clear break with past Kremlin human rights practices that have included imprisonment of dissenters from Communist Party policy.

However, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov refused to confirm or deny that a release of political prisoners is imminent.

He told reporters there are about two dozen such prisoners.

Estimates from human rights groups abroad vary from 150 to more than 500.

Gerasimov said the fate of the prisoners was not on the agenda of the Soviet-West German negotiation that brought Kohl to Moscow.

Kohl's announcement was welcomed by Soviet human rights activist Andrei D. Sakharov, the Reagan administration and Amnesty International. But a leader of a group seeking emigration of Soviet Jews said he remained skeptical.

"Certainly we await the release of all of them (prisoners) and their rehabilitation," said Sakharov, the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize laureate.

In the past three days, Kohl held 10 hours of talks with Gorbachev and also met with other top Kremlin officials.

At a news conference called to sum up his visit, Kohl said: "The Soviets confirmed that they will release before the end of the year all political prisoners as we understand it in the West."

Kohl would not say whether the promise came from Gorbachev, only that it was made during the talks.

When asked how many people may be freed, Kohl's Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher said: "We are not in a position to give final figures."

Niether Kohl nor Genscher identified prisoners who might be released. It was not clear how many Soviets classified in the West as political prisoners might be freed, since some have been sentenced on criminal charges, including espionage.

Amnesty International, the London-based human rights group, says it knows 150 Soviets "imprisoned solely for their non-violent exercise of their fundamental human rights." It put their number at 10,000 a few years ago.

Amnesty's list includes about 30 religious believers, 30 conscientious objectors to military service and about 20 people held for anti-Soviet propaganda and other offenses, said spokesman Carline Windall.

REPORT

Nitz may face death penalty

MARION—Convicted murderer Richard Nitz, described by a prosecutor as "an obsessive homosexual hater," faced the death penalty Wednesday for killing a man and decapitating the body.

Circuit Judge Donald Lowery ruled Tuesday in the first day of Nitz's sentencing hearing that he was eligible to die by lethal injection after his conviction for the shooting death of Michael David Miley.

But first, Lowery planned to hear from three state witnesses and four defense witnesses in deciding whether to sentence Nitz, 38, to death.

In September, jurors convicted Nitz of fatally shooting Miley on April 6. Testimony during his trial indicated he decapitated the body.

Suburban cops report UFOs

LEMONT—Four police officers were out on patrol when they saw flashing lights, but there was no motorist in distress. The officers say they saw an unidentified flying object.

"I was with another officer in the squad car eastbound on Main Street, heading toward Route 171," said police Sgt. Tom Hess in this Chicago suburb.

"And all of a sudden coming out of the north I saw a real bright light. We both caught a glimpse of an oval shaped object."

The bottom half of the object was bluish green and the top half a bright white, Hess said.

More satanic cults reported

PEORIA—Reports of satanism among teen-agers in central Illinois have reached nearly every sheriff's department in a 20-county area surrounding Peoria, a newspaper reported Wednesday.

Police say at least one suicide and a number of grave robberies can be linked to the rise of satanic cults, and add they believe as many as 500 area teens may be involved, the Peoria Journal Star reported.

"This makes street gangs look like a nursery school," Chicago Police Detective Robert Simandi recently told an audience of more than 200 police officers, juvenile workers and counselors from central Illinois.

No one hurt in plane crash

WICHITA, Kan.—Airline officials and passengers praised the pilots of a twin-engine Air Midwest plane with landing gear problems that made a safe emergency belly landing at Wichita's Mid-Continent Airport Wednesday.

"To tell you the truth, I've had rougher landings with the landing gear down. They did a great job," said passenger Tom Watkins of Seal Beach, Calif.

"I was very pleased. It was a lot easier than I thought it would be," said Iona Duvall of Tuttle Beach, Ill.

Six people die in Israeli air raid

DAMOUR, Lebanon (AP)—Israeli warplanes attacked Palestinian guerrilla bases at Sidon and Beirut on Wednesday, killing at least six people, including a man identified as a senior PLO commander.

A family of six and three other people were missing and feared dead under the rubble in Mieh Mieh, a refugee camp outside Sidon that suffered the greatest damage. Police said that 41 people were wounded, all but one at Mieh Mieh.

In south Lebanon, Israeli soldiers and allied militiamen poured artillery fire on positions of Lebanese guerrillas in and around Mashpara, police reported.

Jets struck targets outside the southern port and the capital four and a half hours apart in the third and fourth raids since a suicide

Shiite Moslem car bomber killed eight Israeli soldiers a week ago in the border "security zone" Israel maintains in south Lebanon.

At least 27 people have been killed and 16 wounded in the four raids, which bring the total Israeli air strikes in Lebanon this year to 19. Casualties in all the raids, by police count, have been at least 95 killed and 184 wounded.

Gacy complains about GOP mailings

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Condemned killer John Wayne Gacy has complained to state Republican officials about GOP campaign leaflets that say Gacy would have been "eligible for weekend passes" had he committed his 33 murders in Boston, party officials said Wednesday.

In a one-page typewritten letter received Monday at state Republican headquarters here, Gacy called campaign literature "disgusting and exploitive."

"It is an insult to the voting public that the Illinois Republican State Central Committee has to drop to such a sleazy level by exploiting the name of John Wayne Gacy in order to scare people into voting for George Bush.

"Can't Bush run on his own record and the truth, instead of all this scarey fantasy?" said the letter, dated Oct. 21.

Gacy, imprisoned at the Menard Correctional Center in Southern Illinois, confirmed Wednesday that he wrote the letter, according to Brian Fairchild, a spokesman for the state Department of Corrections.

A virtually identical letter, dated Oct. 23, was mailed to the Associated Press.

The Gacy reference in the state GOP campaign mailings was labeled "garbage" earlier this month by Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, the Democratic presidential candidate, during campaign appearances in Illinois.

The leaflets refer to a furlough program for prisoners that was carried on under Dukakis' administration, and refer to convicted killer, Willie Horton, who, brutalized a Maryland couple while on furlough.

Soviet shuttle to launch on Saturday

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union said Wednesday it will launch its space shuttle Buran on an unmanned mission this week, following months of delays similar to those that plagued the maiden voyage of its U.S. counterpart.

A government commission set the launch for 6:23 a.m. Moscow time Saturday (11:23 p.m. EDT Friday) after receiving reports from specialists following several thousand tests of the Buran and its booster rocket, the Energia, the official news agency Tass reported.

"Buran" is Russian for snowstorm, an appropriate name since the first snow of the season fell this week on Moscow.

Preparations for pouring nearly 2,000 tons of liquid hydrogen, oxygen and hydrocarbon fuel into Energia, billed as the world's most powerful booster rocket, are to begin Thursday, Tass said. The rocket is capable of carrying more than 100 tons of cargo into Earth's orbit, and up to 20 tons to the planets Mars and Venus.

State-run television on Wednesday showed the white delta-shaped Buran, with its name emblazoned in red, attached to the Energia on a launch pad at the Soviet Ubiobn's Baikonur Cosmodrome on the central Asian steppes of the republic of Kazakhstan.

'War of the Worlds'- 50 years old

GROVERS MILL, N.J. (AP)—The Martians are landing again. 50 years after Orson Wells scared the crap out of hundreds of thousands of Americans who believed a War of the Worlds had broken out on Halloween eve.

The hysteria over the radio broadcast clogged telephone lines and roads as the gullible thought huge cylinders carrying Martians were landing throughout the country, wiping out military forces with heat rays and poisonous gas.

Some who sheepishly recounted their terror said they were headed for the hills after hearing the fictional newscast. Others said they had grabbed their guns and headed to Grovers Mill to fight the invaders. Others just prayed.

Millions heard the broadcast: one survey gave the listenership at 6 million, another at 12 million.

Horror invades Thomas Hall for Halloween

Editor's note: The following scenario has been created for the Residence Hall Association's 1988 Haunted House. It is not intended to reflect actual events in Eastern's history.

By LISA ALLEN
Staff writer

Sam is alive and well and you can find him in the basement of Thomas Hall.

Thirty years ago, five Eastern students were involved in what seemed an innocent game of "Cloak and Dagger." George, Sam's roommate, was actively involved in the game. One day Sam and George got into a huge fight. Sam lost his temper and stabbed George to death.

Sam knew he was in trouble. Instead of turning himself into the authorities, he decided to kill off the other members of the "Cloak and Dagger Game." This way, he reasoned, the authorities would think the murders were being committed by someone involved with the game. He succeeded in killing 20 Eastern students before he transferred to another college.

Eastern avoided a scandal by burying the 20 students in what is now the basement of Thomas Hall.

Now, thirty years later, the Residence Hall Association has brought Sam back to Eastern for their haunted house, "It's not a game anymore!" You can see Sam and his victims from 7 to 10 p.m. Thursday in the basement of Thomas Hall.

Sam's victims will lead you through a tour of their "burial grounds." You will be lead through dark tunnels and meet all sorts of horrible creatures.

A long line of students turned out for the Wednesday night opening of the Haunted House. Anthony Clark was just one of the students who dared to enter the basement of Thomas Hall

Wednesday night. He thought the tunnels should have been wider and have more light. He added, however, that it was worth the 50 cent admission price.

One warning: If you can't handle small spaces, stay home! The tunnels are narrow and dark.

Judicial Board acts on falsified stickers

By CATHERINE VELASCO
Campus editor

As midterms end, some students are found falling into trouble by breaking Eastern's Student Conduct Code.

Two Eastern students went to Judicial Board for a case of academic misconduct, Judicial Officer Keith Kohanzo said. The students were working together without the authorization of the professor.

Kohanzo said he could not divulge the reprimands or punishments students receive because he, under law, has to keep students' records confidential.

In addition, two cases of harassment of faculty members also went in front of the judicial board.

Kohanzo said a case of a falsified parking sticker went in front of the judicial board. "We have been getting a lot of them (falsified parking sticker cases)," he said.

University Police caught about 20 students who have falsified parking stickers. Either an underclassman has a sticker and lied about their year in school or an upperclassman bought a sticker for an underclassman, Kohanzo said.

University Police usually discover the falsified parking sticker when a student gets a parking sticker and the police compare the registration and the permit. Sometimes the police find out the student is not an upperclassman or the sticker does not belong to the owner of the car, he said.

Students get studying tips

By MICHELLE WILLMAN
Staff writer

Tips on good note-taking, problem solving methods, time management and test-taking techniques were the topics of discussion at the Counseling Center's study skills workshop Tuesday and Wednesday.

Janet Lambert, associate director of the Reading Center, and Bud Sanders, director of the Counseling Center, presented the two-part workshop to students who have difficulty with their study habits and test-taking.

Good, quality study time, they said, depends on a number of factors.

"Sitting on a bed, or on the floor are not good places to study, because students have a tendency to doze off, or daydream if they feel too comfortable where they are studying," noted Lambert. "Sit in a chair, at a table when it's time to study."

Lambert pointed out that where a person studies is just as important as how a person studies. "People's brains are single-minded, highly distractable, and lazy. Music is most distracting because of the lyrics and the beat, and it's compelling and it makes you think of other things," Lambert said.

She said if a student is going to listen to any kind of music, it should be soothing and without words because songs with lyrics having to do with sex and parties naturally cause a person's mind to wander. "The best thing to do," according to Lambert, "is to send the walkman walking."

Other distractions include food, members of the opposite sex, loud noises, and falling in love, Lambert said.

"Studying is a solitary activity and it should be done in a quiet place, away from people and all other distractions," she said. "College students are under a lot of pressure, and often times they don't eat right, exercise regularly, or get enough sleep, and this affects their study skills. Going to college isn't healthy."

32 students apply for 17 Student Senate seats

By CATHY PODWOJSKI
Staff writer

Students interested in running for Student Senate responded enthusiastically to the upcoming campus elections on Nov. 9, turning in 32 petitions for the 17 available positions on senate.

Elections chair Bill Golden said nine candidates will run for the five and one-half seats in the residence hall district, 13 candidates will run for the five seats in the at-large district, and 10 candidates will run for the five and one-half seats in the off-campus district. Wednesday was the last day for students to return the petitions.

Golden also announced at the senate meeting Wednesday night a candidate's forum will be held Nov. 3 at 7 p.m. in Coleman Hall for the senate hopefuls.

BOG representative Patty Kennedy gave her report concerning the $120 per semester tuition increase approved by the Board of Governors, which will raise $3.5 million in revenue for the five university system.

"I don't see why the students have to pay again," Kennedy said. "We have to get people who care about education in the General Assembly."

Kennedy also said the Bush-Dukakis style debate between the College Republicans and the University Democrats will be Nov. 1 at 7 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

The debate will be conducted by a panel consisting of Student Body President Mike Riordan, Editor-in-Chief of the Daily Eastern News Amy Carr, and Sue Cutsforth of the Radio and Television Center. Kennedy will moderate the debate.

The ground-breaking ceremony for the Coleman Hall Annex will be at 10 a.m. Monday in front of Coleman Hall, Kennedy said. Gov. Jim Thompson will also attend.

Senate member Tom Green said MIA-POW bracelets will be sold for $6.50 Wednesday at the showing of Hanoi-Hilton in the Grand Ballroom at 8 p.m.

Green said $1 from every bracelet sold will go toward buying a commemorative flag.

"We'll be using the money to buy a flag to replace the one that was lost two years ago," Green said.

In other senate business, the resignation of senate member Troy Mayfield was approved. Mayfield said in a letter to Student Speaker Jane Clark his class schedule and participation in theater at Eastern do not allow him to fulfill his obligations to senate, so he felt he must resign.

Senate members also approved setting aside $11,400 for the University Board Players, Eastern's theater group, to go to the regional theater festival with their production of the Tragical History of Dr. Faust, if selected by a festival panel.

Financial Vice-President Tim Gorman said the money will be used partly for hotels, food, transportation and truck rental. If the production is not selected, the money will be returned to the University Board funds.

Housing Chair Dan Riordan also announced a nonpartisan booklet explaining greek court will be out sometime next week.

Everyone has right to voice their opinion

The rights to free speech and assemblage were rudely interrupted when students protesting Vice-Presidential candidate Dan Quayle's speech here at Eastern were out-yelled by Quayle supporters who tried to get rid of the protesters.

The protestors had every right, under the United States Constitution and the Illinois State Constitution, to protest Quayle's speech as long as it was done without severe violence.

Article 1 Section 5 of the Illinois Constitution states "The people have the right to assemble in a peaceable manner, to consult for the common good, to make known their opinions to their representatives and to apply for redress of grievances."

The protestors assembled in a peaceable manner outside Lantz Gymnasium to protest the Bush/Quayle presidential campaign and the speech Quayle was about to give. They felt their opinions on certain issues should be expressed to other people. Some of the issues that they wanted people to take note of were the Republican parties stand on education, welfare, health care and taxes.

Quayle supporters, however, began to shout at the protestors so that their protests could not be heard.

Although the supporters had just as much right to speak out against the protestors, it interrupted the right the protestors had to their free speech. The protestors had every right in the Consitution to state what they felt about the issues.

The protestors were thought of as bad individuals who had nothing better to do on a cold October morning but to assemble and protest a man who decided to come to EIU and give a twenty-five minute speech. These students wanted to state their position on issues that will effect everyone in the country if the Bush/Quayle ticket is elected.

If students want to express their views about a political issue to any type of political candidate, they should have that right and not be shut out by a candidate's supporters.

Education should be major concern

It really upsets me to see the presidential candidates not formally address the issues that face millions of college and university students throughout the country. For example, the cost of college tuition and the accessibility of federal grants and student loans.

With the cost of a college education rising, which is reflected in the Board of Governors decision to once again raise Eastern's tuition costs, the students who plan on going to college after graduating from high school will have to think twice before deciding on a four year college. Eastern is known as one of the best buys in college education, according to U.S. News and World Report, but now it seems a student can go to a four year private school and get the individualized attention of a smaller school for the same price.

Governor Michael Dukakis and Vice President George Bush both have expressed their views about education as something that exists, but they do not clearly define what they will do to help students afford a higher education.

Bush and Dan Quayle have said numerous times that they will be the education administration when elected. But have you ever wondered what an education administration is?

Don't ask about Dukakis' plan for education, either. He has a student loan repayment program that will go into affect if he is elected to the presidency. His plan is to garnish the wages of a student who took out a loan for college for the rest of that student's life or just until the tremendous loan is paid off. This kind of gives me the hint that Dukakis has no plan to lower or regulate future tuition costs or that the repayment program will make it easier for the student to get a loan.

Neither candidate has stated whether or not it will be easier for a student to get a loan to go to the college he or she wants. If the cost of a higher education keeps increasing, it seems as only the very rich will be able to afford a college degree.

Under the Reagan/Bush administration, Stafford Loans (formerly the Guaranteed Student Loan) or any type of financial aid for that matter, were made less accesible to parents in the middle-class income bracket to help the family pay for their son or daughter's education. All I have to say to Dukakis is what good is a repayment program if you can't get a loan?

As a freshman journalism/political science major here at Eastern I have found out how difficult it is to receive the money I needed to stay here and attend college. I was denied the loan for the amount of money I needed to stay here so now I must leave this university at the end of the fall semester to attend a less expensive community college near home, which my family and I can afford.

I personally think Dukakis' repayment plan is a good idea if he can make it easier for college students to get the form of financial aid they need. If Bush is elected, he needs to look into some type of program for financially troubled students who want to go to college. Both candidates should stop talking to their stuffy, rich political advisors and start talking to middle-class college students about the problems concerning education.

International student voices views

America is a vibrant society. People here are always on the move, always planning things to do. They are very creative, talented and patriotic. Americans are, in general, outgoing and adventurous.

But I do find that Americans are also too self-centered and very much ignorant of cultures other than their own.

The just-completed Seoul Olympics was but one exaple which revealed Americans as egotistic. For example, when American athletes marched into the stadium during the opening ceremoies, they behaved as if the turf belonged to them and no one else. They were the most undisciplined lot. The NBC announcer uttered, 'The crowd does not seem to mind.' Who is he to make that kind of opinion? He is supposed to be Mr. Objective. Indeed, the whole world had negative comments toward the U.S. contingent right from the very beginning.

The 1988 Olympics was a scandal-plagued event. We have see drug abuse by some athletes, medal controversies and theft of souvenirs; bound to attract media attention. It was from the media that we knew about these happenings. I agree with one of my American professors who said that NBC found it newsworthy to report minor and irrelevant events.

Asians are by nature "quiet" people. They prefer that unpleasant events be downplayed and good things be highlighted. The professor I was referring to stated that, like most Americans, he had doubts and questions about some decisions and especially in boxing. But he added that we must look at the situation in totality because he said that the anti-American sentiments and bias decisions were the result of American bad attitudes in the first place.

A great deal of what the Americans did and said offended the host country and I can understand how both sides felt. When East and West meet, there is a bound to be cultural conflict.

I also understand how strong Americans feel about their country more so because the United States is a superpower. American like to think of themselves as the center of power and being invincible. Many Americans still do not believe that the Vietnam War was a disaster. And when the Russians beat the Americans in basketball to grab the gold in Seoul, many Americans concluded that their team did not play well, rather than admitting that the Russians were a better team. Several countries which finished on top of the medal count were communist countries and they did not even brag about invincibility.

I once had a professor in class at Eastern who waved a small American flag and said, 'This is our flag and if foreigners do not like it, we'll stick it up their throat.' I find such a gesture an invitation to confrontation, much the same kind of American attitude displayed in Seoul.

But in general the atmosphere for international students in Charleston is pleasant. I find Americans at this campus to be friendly and open. There were picnics, tea receptions, host family programs and temporary housing available for us in addition to the beautiful people in this area.

Eastern has a relatively small number of international students- about 100. It is good and right for both Americans and international students to oppose cultural chauvinism. It will be us who will tell our children about our experience and encounter with people of different races and nationalities. It is important that we understand each other from across the oceans in order for us to cultivate that same understanding to our future generations and for them to pass it on.

Breaking up . . . tips for handling the trauma

By SHERRI BUCHER
Staff writer

The pain and pitfalls of a breakup and tips for handling the trauma of a lost love were heard by about 70 students at a life skills seminar on Wednesday.

"Breaking up: Leaving a loved one and being left" was a mini-workshop sponsored by the counseling center and led by Clayton Tucker-Ladd, professor of psychology at Eastern.

"I've been in love several times, so that's my expertise," Tucker-Ladd said.

Tucker-Ladd defined two types of people involved in a breakup as the "leaver" and the "leavee." He described himself as a "leavee" and said that most people are more one type than the other.

"The intensity of the pain from a breakup is close to that suffered from the death of a loved one," Tucker-Ladd said explaining that this pain is often complicated by feelings of hate and self-doubt, particularly in the "leavee."

He described six different stages of the break-up process. They include shock, grief, need to understand, resignation, rebuilding and resolution.

The shock stage involves an initial numbness and disbelief. The grief stage is marked by "incredible pain." The "leavee" may feel intense urges to contact the "leaver," even if the reason is trivial, he said.

The third stage is marked by blame as the "leavee" attempts to understand why the break up occurred. Tucker-Ladd described this need to understand as "almost desperate." He also said the "leavee" may blame either himself, the "leaver" or both.

The resignation, rebuilding and resolution stages involve letting go of the former relationship, beginning to date again and making peace with the "leaver."

"We do vary greatly in how long this breaking up process takes," Tucker-Ladd added.

He related five pitfalls "leavees" often encounter during or after a break up. They include depression, rebounding, return to the former relationship, dwelling on anger and resentment and trying to escape the pain by excess behaviors such as eating, drinking alcohol, and working.

"It is not uncommon for the 'leavee' to contemplate suicide and not at all uncommon for the 'leaver' to be threatened by suicide," he said citing that depression and self-blame are some causes of these suicidal tendencies.

Tucker-Ladd offered several recommendations for overcoming post break-up blues. Counseling, talking to supportive friends, keeping busy and recognizing irrational fears were some of the tips he gave. Tucker-Ladd described irrational fears as "I'll always be alone" and "I'll never love anyone again."

Tucker-Ladd urged extremely depressed individuals to seek counseling at Eastern's counseling center, located at 1711 Seventh St, phone 581-3413.

Course revisions and admission policies, topics for the CAA

By ROB FAETH
Staff writer

The Council on Academic Affairs will meet at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Union addition Arcola/Tuscola room to continue its discussion of admission policies and consider several course revisions.

CAA chair Terry Weidner said Wednesday there is a possibility that they will complete work on the revision of admission standards contained in the recently completed study of undergraduate education.

A proposal from Samuel Taber, dean of academic affairs, that would require transfer students to have at least 30 hours of credit upon entering Eastern may be voted on at Thursday's meeting.

Weidner said the proposal would eliminate possible academically deficient students from entering Eastern or at least allow those students to demonstrate academic ability before entering Eastern.

Weidner said he is hopeful that the council will get past the admissions standards this week and vote on all necessary amendments to the admission standards.

After the CAA acts on the changes in admission standards, Eastern President Stan Rives must review the proposals before they become effective.

In addition to the examination of admission standards, Weidner said, "We're going to take action on new courses in health studies and home economics."

Included in the course revisions is HST 3001, "Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR-BLS) Instructor," which is a course in teaching CPR.

Weidner said although Eastern currently offers a course in CPR, it is only a one hour class.

"HST 3001 is in response to requirements by the Red Cross which request the student to have a three-hour course," Weidner said.

Woman seeks compensation for accident-related injuries

A Coles County woman injured in a 1987 auto accident is seeking compensation for injuries she sustained.

On Aug. 25, 1987, Janna Legrand Barker was a passenger in the car driven by Lori A. Barker of Charleston when the car ran off the road, causing a single car accident on Route 49 just south of Homer.

Janna's attorney, Brian L. Bower of Charleston, declined comment Wednesday on the case and the relationship between the women, pending litigation.

The suit, filed in the Coles County Circuit Clerk's office, states that Janna had sustained severe and permanent injuries, including a concussion, a ruptured spleen, a dislocated right shoulder and liver damage.

Lori was accused in the suit of failure to keep the car in control, failure to reduce speed of the car to avoid an accident and failure to maintain a proper lookout.

Janna is seeking monetary compensation from Lori in excess of $15,000. Compensation is sought for injuries sustained and costs involved in the suit.

Halls open hearts for Halloween

writer

Eastern's residence halls are opening their hearts to good causes this Halloween season.

The Gregg Triad, Lincoln-Stevenson-Douglas Complex, Andrews and Carman halls are all participating in different Halloween related charitable activities this week.

Carman Hall was the first to show their generosity this Halloween season on Tuesday through their Trick-or-Treat for Charity program. Carman Hall Programming Board President Julie Forliano, and board member Meg Meyer, said this continues the Carman Hall Halloween tradition.

The festivities started at 7 p.m. with a costume contest. After the best CPB members went room to room collecting money for the Treatment Learning Center in Moon. The money will be used to buy Christmas gifts for emotionally disturbed children of the center, said Forliano. The trick-or-treaters collected over $120 from the generous Carman residents, she said.

Lincoln, Stevenson, and Douglas Halls are having girl and boy scout groups to their complex to trick or treat on Halloween. The residents of the complex signed up ahead of time to have kids come to their door for candy. Door decorations will distinguish the participating residents.

The trick or treating will be from 7-8 p.m. with a costume contest for the kids in Stevenson's lobby. The idea for the program came from Stevenson Hall Council Secretary Stephanie Phillips. She and two floor representatives from LSD put the program together.

The Gregg Triad is also participating in charitable events this week. Volunteers from the complex are going to dress up and visit homes in Charleston to collect money for the United Way Fund starting at 6 p.m. on Halloween. Julie Wibusch, a Ford Hall counselor, said the residents of Triad did this program last year.

Andrews Hall is also taking part in the Halloween generosity by inviting Charleston children into their hall to trick-or-treat.

Counseling center offers variety of student programs

By MARK HUNT
Staff writer

Students who want to get more out of life can find help at Eastern's Counseling Center. The center, located at 1711 Seventh St., offers a variety of programs dealing with issues of interest to students. They provide help in such areas as career planning, stress management and relaxation. The center sponsors "Lifeskills" seminars every other Wednesday at noon in the University Union. "These seminars cover many topics, such as eating disorders, sexual problems and stress management," said Claudia Lane, coordinator of the center's Outreach Program. "We pick topics of interest to students. Those that we notice are popular, we try to repeat at a later date," Lane said. Evening workshops are also offered and cover topics similar to the "Lifeskills" seminars. Pamphlets and program announcements are available at the Counseling Center. Students with questions about any of the programs offered by the center are encouraged to come in or call at 581-3413. The center is open from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. "All seminars and workshops are free of charge and open to students and the general public," she said. Some of the programs are limited in enrollment and require registration, so students should check with the center when interested in a particular workshop or seminar. For the student wanting to get more out of studying, the center offers a study skills program. It helps students improve time management, note taking, tests and motivation. A vocational career library at the center maintains current files on job opportunities in particular fields. It also includes information on the nature of specific jobs, the training and education needed for them.

Instructors begin art exhibition

By KIM HOFFMEISTER
Staff writer

Eastern art instructors will be having their annual exhibition at Tarble Arts Center from October 28 through November 27. A reception to celebrate the exhibition has been scheduled for Oct. 30. This year's Art Faculty Exhibition will feature works by 17 faculty members, as well as three retired faculty members and professor Czeslaw Ciapalo, who is visiting from Poland. Director Michael Watts said he believes the show's diversity is its strength. "Everyone is bound to find something they like," he said. The exhibits range from oil paintings and watercolors to sculptures and ceramics. Many of the works are figural or abstract with emphasis on nature, geometrical forms, or even political cartoons. Watts said the exhibit is usually well attended, due partially to the fact that students and the community know the faculty and are interested in seeing their works. Professor Czeslaw Ciapalo is visiting Eastern through the faculty exchange program and will be here throughout the academic year. Aside from teaching his classes, he also talks in various other classes and will be exhibiting his work. The EIU Art Department and the Tarble Arts Centers are the co-sponsors of the show. The exhibition will be held at the Center and open hours are 10 a.m.-5p.m. Tuesday through Friday, 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday, and 1-4 p.m. on Sunday. The Tarble Arts Center will be closed November 24-25 for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Guest to speak about recent conference in Nicaragua

BY DARCY BOYD
Staff writer

Ellen Cunningham, chairman of the mathematics department at St. Mary's of the Woods College in Terre Haute Ind., will address the situation in Nicaragua and will discuss her recent visit to Nicaragua Thursday night. She will speak about her trip to the Central American Conference on Women in Science, Technology, and Medicine at 7:15 p.m. in Room 120 of Coleman Hall. The conference was held in Nicaragua in August, 1987. The first of its kind, this conference prompted a regional conference on this subject. It is hoped that the conferences will be held bi-annually. "The sense of excitement and pride that people have in their country," is what Cunningham said surprised her the most about Nicaragua. She said the Nicaraguans are proud of what they are accomplishing throughout the country. Rosemary Schmalz, associate professor of mathematics at Eastern, said Cunningham's lecture will be focusing on three main issues: the conference itself, her feelings on Nicaragua and their feelings towards Americans, and the political situations in Nicaragua.

Billikens.

Laidlaw will not start the game. "It would be an asset to have Gary playing, but if he is injured there is no use of him playing," Mosnia said. "If we need him, he'll play."

The Billikens, of course, will not be going into this game blindly. St. Louis coach Joe Clarke is aware of the situation.

"Eastern Illinois is a very, very good team," Clarke said. "They are one of the best teams that we played last year, and are one of the best that we'll play this year."

"When you go into a game like this, you are almost a goal down at the beginning," Clarke added. "I think it's important to our players."

"Although the Billikens do not need a victory to get into the play-offs, they probably will not lay down and die."

"It will be a low-scoring game," Proffitt said. "It will probably be a one-goal difference."

Proffitt will be one of the players indirectly affected by Laidlaw's injury. Midfielder Kompare will probably be moved up to play Laidlaw's forward position, while Glendinning or senior Brian Henn will play in place of Kompare, which could put some extra pressure on Proffitt.

"I like when I'm presented a challenge," Proffitt said. "I know whatever the game calls for, I'll be ready."

Glendinning will also be ready for any action.

"I'm still going to be coming off the bench," he said. "I should be ready to come in."

And the team will be directly affected by Kompare's move to forward.

"I'm usually counted on for defensive play as well as offensive," Kompare said. "The team definitely will have to adjust."

The team had to adjust in last weekend's match against Illinois-Chicago, where Laidlaw played only five minutes.

"As a forward, I'm more geared toward offense, which I don't mind at all," Kompare said. "I'm up there in the goal scorers on the team, so it would be natural to put me up front."

But the bottom line will be for the Panthers to win the game.

"All I want to do is win the game," Proffitt said. "We're a stronger team than last year."

"This is the game," Glendinning said. "We have a good chance to win."

To win the game, the Panthers may need the help of the Eastern fans.

"If anyone should watch a game, it should be this one," Mosnia said earlier.

Home-field advantage has worked for the Panthers over the last two seasons.

Lasorda wins award

NEW YORK (AP) - Tommy Lasorda, who led Los Angeles to the World Series championship and their sixth National League West title in 12 years, was named NL Manager of the Year Wednesday by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Lasorda received 101 points in balloting by a committee of two writers from each NL city. He had 19 first-place votes and was named on 23 of 24 ballots. It was the second time Lasorda was voted manager of the year. He won the award in 1983, its initial year.

Jim Leyland of Pittsburgh was second with 50 points after leading the Pirates to an 85-75 record and second place in the East behind the New York Mets.

Davey Johnson, who led the Mets to a league-leading 100-60 record and their second East title in three years, was third with 38 points.

Jack McKeon, who took over the Padres from Larry Bowa on May 28, was fourth with 27 points. San Diego was 67-48 under McKeon and had the second-best record in the league over the final four months of the season.

Lasorda learned that he had won while flying to Los Angeles and the Dodgers had been honored Wednesday at the White House.

"This completes my day -- one of the greatest days of my life," the Dodger manager told Jack Lang, secretary-treasurer of the writers' group.

Panther were previously ed to play Old Dominion rst round.

"It (the shuffling) came about because New Mexico State withdrew from the tournament," Samuels said. "They (Chaminade) just wanted to re-pair the bracket to set up more equitable matchups for TV."

New Mexico State had been scheduled to play the Hawkeyes in the first round, but an NMSU official said the Aggies were forced to drop out of the tournament because of an NCAA rule limiting the number of games a team can play outside the 48 contiguous states. The Aggies have a European tour scheduled for next season.

Iowa has three returning starters, including Ed Horton of Springfield-Lanphier, who was 1984-85 Mr. Basketball in Illinois.

Meanwhile, the Association of Mid-Continent Universities conference has announced a 16-game TV package to be broadcast on SportsVision this season.

The package will open with Notre Dame vs. Valparaiso on Dec. 17. Only one Eastern contest, at home against Southwest Missouri State on Jan. 21, will be shown.

"What we're looking at are games that are already being generated," Samuels said. "It's good for the league, but I think we've got to look at what we can do to get in the picture."

In other basketball news: --Eastern women's basketball coach Barbara Hilke has a busy schedule planned for herself and the Lady Panthers.

The Lady Panthers will hold an intrasquad scrimmage at 6 p.m. Friday in Lantz Gym as part of the College of Health, Physical Education and Recreation's Wellness Fair.

Hilke said she hasn't set the teams for the scrimmage.

"We're going to mix it," she said. "We're not attempting to set a lineup yet."

In November, the Lady Panthers will participate along with the men's basketball team in the Junior Panther Club Camera Day/Basketball Clinic at Lantz Gym.

In addition, Hilke and Samuels will discuss Eastern basketball every Wednesday at Boomer's Restaurant beginning Nov. 30.

And the Lady Panthers will host a reception for Panther Club members Nov. 14 to meet the community.

Sox manager candidates interviewed by Himes

CHICAGO (AP)— Chicago White Sox General Manager Larry Himes is interviewing seven candidates for team manager and hopes to name a replacement for the fired Jim Fregosi by early November, officials said Wednesday.

Himes also said he was "very impressed" with Bill Robinson, a New York Mets first base and batting coach, and with Pittsburgh third base coach Gene Lamont, after meeting with them Tuesday in Sarasota, Fla.

"Larry would like to have a guy named by Nov. 10," Dan Evans, assistant general manager of the team said. "he is continuing interviews."

Evans said Himes wants the new manager to have time to scout players well in advance of baseball's winter meetings, where many trades are usually made. The meetings begin Dec. 2.

Tuesday's interviews with Robinson and Lamont took place in Himes' Sarasota condominium. Al Goldis, Sox director of scouting and minor leagues, was the only other person present.

"I picked seven to interview," Himes said. "I could have picked 19 and gone through cursory interviews, but I picked seven and I'll identify the things I want my manager to represent."

Robinson, 45, who is black, spent last winter managing Caracas to the Venezuelan League title and qualifying for the Caribbean World Series. he has never managed in the minor leagues.

The White Sox have no blacks on their field coaching staff after firing first base coach Walt Williams.

As a player, Robinson helped the Pirates to the 1979 world championship with a .263 average.

Among others believed to be on the final list are Texas Rangers coach Art Howe; Jim Lefebvre, third base coach of the Oakland Athletics; Jeff Torborg and Bucky Dent of the Yankees, and Mets' bench coach Bud Harrelson, the Chicago Sun-Times reported.

"I have never had a cup of coffee or a Coke or a drink with any of them," he said. "I told the two guys (Lamont and Robinson) today that this may be one of the few times that a general manager is going strictly on things they have to offer."

Booters face crucial test

By AL LAGATTOLLA
Staff Writer

Last season, Eastern's soccer team was one game away from a bid to the NCAA tournament. The only team that stood in their way was St. Louis University.

The importance of the game was evident, if St. Louis won, they were in the tournament and if the Panthers won, Eastern would be tournament-bound.

The Billikens, playing at home, defeated the Panthers 1-0 and went on to the tournament while the Panthers stayed home.

This year, the story is only slightly different.

The Panthers play the Billikens Thursday at Lakeside field at 2 p.m.

St. Louis, 15-2-2 and ranked No. 4 in the nation and No. 1 in the Midwest Region, probably already has a tournament bid wrapped up, their hopes don't hinge on this game.

But, the Panthers pin their hopes on this game as the key that will open the door to the tournament.

"This is the most important game this season," said junior midfielder David Kompare. "I don't see any problem getting psyched to play."

"I think that it has got to be the biggest game of my career," said sophomore midfielder Erik Proffitt. "We know how hard we worked last year."

"This is the game of the season," said freshman midfielder David Glendinning. "This is a pretty much do or die situation."

The Panthers remember last year; it was a bitter pill to swallow.

"We outplayed them for more than half the game, so we deserved to win," Kompare said. "Last year will help us because we lost."

"We know how hard we worked last year," Proffitt said. "We are definitely out for revenge."

Revenge? The Panthers were kept out of the playoffs last year because of one game, because of one goal.

Motivation? If the Panthers don't win this game, the same situation may occur, something Eastern does not want.

"I was hoping that that was how the players would feel," said Eastern soccer coach Cizo Mosnia upon hearing the talk of revenge among the players. "I personally feel the same way because we were so close last year."

The Panthers and the Billikens have met eight times before; Eastern has a 5-3 lead in the series, although they have been shut out in the last two contests.

One factor that will not aid the Panthers' scoring is the injury of junior forward Garry Laidlaw.

Laidlaw, who has groin pulls in both legs, is tied for the team scoring lead with senior Mark Noffert, and would be a tremendous asset against a team like the

Geib-Vision of future for spikers

By BILL LOOBY
Staff writer

This season has been a roller-coaster ride for the Eastern volleyball team so far, but one constant for the Lady Panthers has been the play of sophomore Cindy Geib.

The Libertyville native has, along with fellow middle hitter Gianna Galanti, made the net a very dangerous spot for Eastern opponents.

Geib has 24 block solos and 40 block assists, following only the senior Galanti in those categories.

She ranks 10th in the Gateway in block average with .88 blocks per game.

Geib has come a long way from walking on and making the team as a freshman last year to starting for the team this year.

"I called the coach (Eastern coach Betty Ralston) a couple of days before I came down (to school)," Geib said. "I thought I had a chance to make it (the team)."

The up-and-down ride of the spikers has Geib perplexed.

Cindy Geib

On a grade she would give the team's play so far this year she said, "We're so inconsistent, I would say sometimes A's and sometimes flunking."

"We're better than what we've played."

On her performance this year. "I'm pleased, I've been starting."

"She has come on and done a very good job for us. Her blocking skills are the best part of her game," Ralston said.

Geib's role on the team is that "she is pretty much a quiet player out there. She doesn't hit the blazing spikes, but she gets the job done," Ralston said.

Geib sees her attitude as her addition to the team. "I have a laid-back attitude. I try to say something to make someone smile after a mistake. There is no reason to get uptight over a mistake."

Even though the Panthers will lose three starting seniors from this year's 14-10 squad, Geib thinks, although the Lady Panthers will lose their experience, she thinks the younger players will be able to step in and fill their positions.

"I think we're going to get even better, Diane and Deanna started as freshman (last year), and by the time we're seniors we will have a good team."

Ralston echoed the sentiment about Geib. "With the experience she is getting, she is only going to get better."

Harriers may have to run meet without Mizener

By PHIL CHAPARRO
Staff writer

With the Gateway Conference Championships only two days away, the Lady Panther cross country team might be without their top runner.

Sophomore Laurie Mizener left the campus last week, and returned home with an unspecified illness. If she doesn't return by Friday, she will not compete in the meet.

"I got a call from Laurie Mizener's dad Sunday night and she went home last week with an undisclosed illness," head coach John Craft said. "It doesn't appear that she's going to be back with us for the conference meet."

Mizener, who is the women's No. 1 runner, finished 23rd overall in the 1987 conference meet and was expected to finish in the top 10 this year.

Without the services of Mizener, the women will have to rely on freshman Stefanie Stump, junior Connie Bierman and senior Ann Body to pace the women in the Gateway.

Laurie Mizener

"Missing our No. 1 runner, person that would have possibly placed in the top 10 of the conference will definitely hurt us," Craft said. "The absence of Laurie will considerably hurt us."

Right now, Craft is not leaving out the possibility of Mizener's return, but he is not optimistic.

"If she would come in on Friday and say 'Coach, I can run she would run,'" Craft said.

Former Panther Cimo free agent after 7 years in minors

By DAVID BRUMMER
Staff writer

Matt Cimo saw the movie "Bull Durham" this summer.

"It was pretty realistic," said Cimo of Hollywood's version of--more or less--minor league baseball. He's less than Yogi Berra as a movie critic, but Cimo has wrestled with the pragmatics of the minor leagues enough to make him nearly an authority on the realisms that drape the game he plays.

Cimo, a former Eastern player and subsequent draft pick of the San Francisco Giants, recently finished his seventh season in the minor leagues--this last one at Rochester, the Triple-A affiliate of the Baltimore Orioles.

However, because the Orioles did not add him to their 40-man major league winter roster, Cimo became a minor league free agent on Oct. 22 and is now eligible to make a deal with any major league team that wants him. Baltimore has offered him only a Triple-A contract for next season. Ideally, Cimo would like to find a major league team that he could make out of spring training.

"I'm going to test the market," said Cimo, who hit .253 with eight homers and 20 RBI in 260 plate appearances this year. "I don't know how much interest (by other teams) there is out there for me. I hope there is some."

His record would seem to indicate that he will get some additional offers.

Two years ago the righthanded-hitting outfielder batted .300 with 18 homers at Class AA-Charlotte. He also hit .300 one season in Class A while in the Giants' organization. Cimo pointed out that, not coincidentally, those two seasons were the only ones in which he had over 400 at bats for the year.

"I know that if I were given a chance to play everyday, I could play in the major leagues," said the 27-year-old Cimo. "In my mind, that's the biggest objective--just getting the chance to prove myself."

Considering the hapless play of the Baltimore Orioles, especially early in the season, Cimo--the only righthanded-hitting outfielder at Rochester--thought that the Orioles might give him a call this year, after he hit .290 through the first half of the Triple-A season. But those dreams were washed out when the Orioles signed free-agent outfielder Ken Landreaux at mid season and assigned the veteran major leaguer to Rochester.

The acquisition of Landreaux landed Cimo a spot on the bench and marked another disappointing turn in Cimo's career.

"That was really frustrating," said the 6-0, 185-pound Cimo, who agreed that Baltimore's acquisition of Landreaux couldn't have a positive long-range effect for the Orioles. "It always seems like there's somebody there playing in front of me who the organization likes better."

"The more I play this game...it's so much politics. It's really 'who you know'."

As much as things seem against Cimo, however, he does have one fan--Tim Pynzanski, a former teammate at Eastern in 1980 and '81 who played with Cimo for the
